Flight Sentinel Paid for Itself in One Day

"When we landed at Philadelphia to drop off passengers, there were numerous other aircraft enduring long ground delays, and parked all over the ramp waiting for departure clearance. We taxied clear of the runway and carefully zigzagged past all the waiting airplanes to drop off our passengers.

After dropping off our passengers, we received a hard-copy of our next flight plan from Flight Sentinel, then picked up an IFR clearance, started engines, and zigzagged past the same aircraft and took off! Leaving all the others on the ground to take over an hour delay! I am thrilled with the excellent service we receive from Flight Sentinel. The time and money we saved in just one day as a result of Flight Sentinel services justified our annual subscription. This is just one example of how Flight Sentinel is helping corporate aviation gain the advantage."

Flight Sentinel Saved Us 20 Minutes of Flight Time

"My sincere thanks to you and the entire team at [Flight Sentinel]. What a wonderful service. The major airlines have had this for years--now we in corporate can have the same benefits.

To recap: We were in the G-V with CEO on a flight from EGSS [Stansted, England] to KIAD [Dulles, VA]. As we entered Boston Center airspace we were given a reroute into IAD which added 20 min to the flight plan. We knew there were thunderstorms in the area so assumed the reroute was due to weather. However when we checked with Flight Sentinel they advised the best route was in over LRP and the STAR into Dulles (our standard route). We contacted Boston with a request for an amended clearance per your suggestion. In short order Boston came back with the new clearance.

Net result was 20+ minutes of flying time saved but the most important element, which can not be measured in $$, is the CEO was able to make his dinner speech. We were running late out of EGSS and any delay would have caused him to miss his speech. Therefore you really saved the entire trip. Flight Sentinel paid for itself in 1 Flight. Keep up the great work!"

Our Passengers Were Impressed

"Your [Flight Sentinel] service has once again proven to be invaluable to us. On a high priority charter flight from Southern California to the East Coast, where a winter storm had slowed or stopped most traffic, your service got us off the ground on time and saved us an hour of ATC Delays on departure. Our passengers had been concerned about the weather and your continual updates on enroute conditions and destination weather and expected delays gave them a great deal of comfort. The information on expected holding at the destination was spot-on and made a very favorable impression on the passengers".
